Moral and Character Education in Faculty of Medicine Islamic University of Indonesia: An Experience of Student Perspective
Presenter: Syaefudin Ali AKHMAD, Vebi Novi YENDRI, Islamic University of Indonesia

Islamic University of Indonesia (IUI) Faculty of Medicine (FM) was founded in 2001, had a vision in accordance with the vision rahmatalill'alamin (blessing for all) of IUI. The purpose of medical education in Faculty of Medicine IUI is to nurture highly competitive Muslim doctors having akhlaqul karimah (virtue ethics) in line with standarts of five star doctors of WHO. Medical schools do not only transfer knowledge and science but also embeded religious values (Islam) as the development of moral and personal character of a Muslim doctor. Moral and character of Muslim physicians include honest, responsible, fair, humble, helpful, appreciate others, sincere, patient and full of dedication and discipline. In order to shape the moral and character in Faculty of Medicine in IUI have been enacted curriculum that integrates aspects of the humanities, bioethics and religious perspectives in each block which students involved. Effort to embed moral and character must be done continuously since the early students at the undergraduate level to the professional level. In tutorial activities, students should be able to do tafakkur and tadabbur by integration between scenario of tutorial discussion with the value of religious (Islam). At the activity of medical skill training, students are trained to be familiar with the behavior that corresponds to the value of religious (Islam). Another factor in the formation of moral and character is a role model of tutors, assistants, lecturers, staffs and leadership at FM IUI. According to the student perspective and their experiences some of the activities students were very influential in growing moral and character Muslim doctors, such as field activities, public service (bakos), tutorials and assignments. No less important is the role model as best example of the academic and non-academic staffs (Lecturer, Tutor, Instructor Medical, and Employees). Character and moral education in FM IUI still did not yet optimal do both at the undergraduate and professional levels due to lack of uswatan hasanah (the best example as role model) despite often given mau’idhoh hasanah by staff or lecturer through short islamic sermon. Other activity to inculcate character of moslem doctor is done through mentoring program guided by lecturer and senior students as well as staff non-academic.

Preparing Children to Live in a Democratic Society through Positive Civil Discourse Development
Presenter: Rahayu APRILASWATI, Tanjungpura University, Indonesia
Presentation 5.A.2

Using an action research case-study, this qualitative study focused on developing the positive civil discourse of elementary school students. The data of this study were obtained from a three-cycle action research project, conducted with a fourth grade class of Elementary School 42 Pontianak, Indonesia. The data were collected from classroom observations, including audio tapings, artefact collections and interviews as well as conversations with teachers and students which allowed an in-depth investigation into how teachers developed the positive civil discourse of students in the classroom. The results of the study showed that students
